Welcome

First off, thank you for supporting this event. The idea of a coach's game began in simple conversation between John Blessman and Lock Corley. We thought that it would be great to get our coaching group together and have some fun. The more we thought about this, the more it became obvious that we could get something meaningful behind it. The idea of using the CMHA membership to support a Christmas Food drive quickly became obvious. The Hurricane Sandy disaster also required some attention and we are accepting donations on behalf of CMHA for the Red Cross Disaster Relief program. Hopefully this turns into an annual event for our coaches!

We wanted this event to be fun for all CMHA members and invited all of the CMHA players to come and cheer, or most likely jeer their coaches. This is a chance for all players encourage and evaluate their own coaches while having a fun time!

Again, thank your for your support!

It is now time for the coaches to show what they got!

Coaches Biography

Team Black - Garrett Burnett

Garrett is a former CMHA player that was able to recognize his childhood dream and play in the NHL. Garrett's dad, Bob was also a CMHA Head coach for many years and we thank them for their ongoing support to CMHA.

Undrafted, Garrett played primarily in the East Coast Hockey League before signing as a free agent with the San Jose Sharks on June 2, 1998. Playing a tough style of hockey, in Garrett's minor league career amassed 2,562 penalty minutes.

After signing with the Mighty Ducks of Anaheim on July 25, 2003, Garrett made his NHL debut in the 2003–04 season. Garrett scored his first career NHL goal against Brent Johnson of the Phoenix Coyotes on March 17, 2004. The enforcer played 39 games and registered 184 penalty minutes while scoring one-goal and adding two assists. Garrett participated in 22 fights in his sole NHL season with the Mighty Ducks of Anaheim. His reputation for having a "face of stone" was solidified in his March 19, 2004 fight against San Jose's Scott Parker, who sustained a broken hand from fighting Burnett.

Burnett signed an NHL one-way contract for the 2004–05 season plus a one year option, but due to the 2004 NHL Lockout only played briefly as the player-assistant coach for the Danbury Trashers of the UHL in 2004. Garret became a free agent and was signed by the Dallas Stars for the 2005–06 season, in which he played for minor league affiliates the Iowa Stars and Phoenix RoadRunners.

Garrett also tried his hand at lacrosse, signing with the Arizona Sting of the National Lacrosse League in 2006, landing on their practice roster. He had not played an NLL game as of the 2006 season. During the 2006 season he played lacrosse for the New Westminster Salmonbellies of the Western Lacrosse Association Vancouver, BC.

Team Gold – Goldie Goldthorpe

Goldie is a retired professional ice hockey player who served as the inspiration for the infamous character Ogie Ogilthorpe in the 1977 film Slap Shot.

Goldthorpe, a left winger who grew up in Thunder Bay, Ontario, is widely regarded as one of the most infamous hockey enforcers to have ever played the game, a man once dubbed the "wildest, meanest, most unpredictable player in hockey." In his eleven-year career (1973–84), Goldthorpe played for ten minor league teams and four World Hockey Association squads; he also suited up for exhibition games with the Toronto Maple Leafs and Pittsburgh Penguins. Along the way, Goldthorpe racked up an amazing 1,132 penalty minutes in just 194 professional games.

A highly anticipated film about Goldthorpe's life, fittingly named Ogilthorpe, is slated to be in theatres in 2013.
